Message From the Director General

Creating Hand in Hand Boldly Moving Forward

COVID-19 swept cross the world in 2020, presenting the world of sport at home and overseas with serious challenges, with numerous sports events and activities affected or cancelled. As well as encouraging citizens to engage in sport during the epidemic period, the Sports Administration (SA) put forward Sports Stimulus Vouchers to revitalize the sports industry, relief measures for sports groups, relief for sports businesses, relief assistance for sports lottery sellers and the international sports exchange alternative plan to ease the impact of COVID-19 on the sports industry and sports exchange.

Healthy citizens are a country's biggest asset and citizens' fitness is the corner stone of national competitiveness. In 2019, 33% of the population of Taiwan engaged in regular exercise, 35.7% of men and just 30.4% of women. As the epidemic gradually eases, the SA will continue to implement the iSports program to encourage citizens to exercise regularly, use the Community Fitness Promotion program to allow people to understand their own physical state and use Community Competitions to take sports deep into daily life and get people outside to start their sports epidemic prevention new life! Continuing the emphasis on disabled people of the past, in 2020 the SA held over 500 sports activities for mentally and physically disabled people and conducted the Together We Move sports instruction troupe tour, sending disabled sports instructors into sports venues to hold courses to increase the opportunity for disabled people to engage in sports and raise their profile.

To build a sport-for-all environment, the SA began implementing the Program for Building a Leisure Sports Environment in 2017, actively guiding city and county governments to establish distinctive bikeways at sports and leisure parks or scenic spots and to optimize existing bikeways and make them barrier-free.

In the epidemic period, outdoor exercise has become people's first choice for fitness. From the bikeways subsidized under the Forward-looking Infrastructure Development Program, the SA chose several highlight bikeways that are far from hustle and bustle and the routes have become popular. The bikeways offer beautiful scenery so that riders can enjoy Taiwan's lovely scenery while keeping fit.

In the area of competitive sports, many sports events were delayed in 2020 due to the pandemic; however, in Taiwan, events such as the CPBL, Tour de Taiwan, CTCA International Chess Open, National High School Games, National Intercollegiate Athletic Games, the National Disabled Games and the Citizens Sports

Games went ahead on schedule. Athletes have not relaxed on the training front due to COVID-19 and have performed well in various sports events! Although Tokyo 2020 has been delayed until 2021, the fighting spirit of athletes remains undiminished, and they are preparing actively. The SA continues to provide resources to support athlete training with the aim of having every Taiwan athlete at the Tokyo Olympics win glory on the international stage.

Launched in 2013, the Sport and Physical Education Policy White Paper is in its 8th year. The SA continues to promote reform with regard to Physical Education in Schools, Sport for All, Competitive Sports, International and Cross-Straits Sports, Sports Industry and Sports Facilities. Every effort is made to promote sport for the elderly, women, traditional and new sports, traditional indigenous sports, promoting city/county sports hotspots and molding local sports culture to create a happy sports experience for all. As well as promoting mental and physical health, an integrated strategy of scientifically selecting athletes is actively followed, enhancing the selection, training, competition, guidance integrated training system, comprehensive incentive measures to reward outstanding athletic performances and evaluation complete. At the same time, focused sorting and use of academic and cultural information is carried out, with the aim of nurturing outstanding sports talent both skilled in sports and educated, furthering the great national sports cause and together building a vigorous and hopeful Taiwan!
