The launch ceremony was coupled with the press conference for one of the 100 major sports events of 2019 - the Tour de Taiwan. The atmosphere was lively, and further excitement added by a performance of street dance combined with Taiwan's traditional formation culture by TSD Taiwan dance troupe that blessed the 100 events and also symbolically wished the Tour de Taiwan good luck.

The Tour de Taiwan, the only UCI-sanctioned class 1 cycling event, was held in Taiwan from March 17 to March 21. It included 5 classic stages; it set off in Taipei, then passed through Taoyuan, along the Hakka Romantic Avenue, through Tainan County and then end in Pingtung County. Over 200 elite riders from 20 teams around the world battled out for the yellow jersey. All the 5 stages tested the riders' mettle. Three-time in succession tour King of the Mountains Feng Chun-kai once again led the way for the Chinese Taipei Team, accompanied by professional rider Tu Chih-hao and new generation hopes, doing their best to win glory for the team.

The Sports Administration stated that the 100 sports events organized in 2018 achieved outstanding results in terms of number of viewers, sales of sports lottery tickets and the level of competition, and attracted 800,000 spectators at the venues and over 100 million broadcast viewers, showing the wide appeal of sports competitions. Sporting circles, the business community, fans, viewers and media reporters were specially thanked for their strong support. Looking toward Tokyo 2020, 2019 is a year for all-out preparation and building up for the big stage for athletes. The Sports Administration will continue to play the role of provider of home advantage for athletes, and hopes that, through organizing international sports events, Taiwan's profile, competitive level and the popularity of sport viewing, at venues or at home, could be raised.

To allow people to easily search for the information on international sports event, continuing the passion of Fun Sports in Taiwan of 2018, the Sports Administration continues to display the 100 events through the categories of "Taiwan Hito", "Sports for all", "Women's Events" and "Juniors Events" and handed out the 2019 sports event calendar at the venue. This year, the various sports events will be promoted in cooperation with civil sports centers across Taiwan. International sports event capacity building and dissemination of event results will also be achieved through diverse promotion activities and results presentation ceremony. This year, splendid sports events will successively take the stage across Taiwan and will attract top athletes from around the world. The Sports Administration invites everyone to cheer on the athletes, in particular the local athletes, with family and friends and also enjoy broadcast of the events through various media channels.

SPIN Accelerator Taiwan - Asia's First Sports Accelerator: 10 New Startup Teams Demonstrate Their Products in First Cycle Demo Day

Group picture taken at the First Cycle Demo Day of SPIN Accelerator Taiwan

SPIN Accelerator Taiwan's 1st Cycle Demo Day was held at the Sports Administration on March 4, 2019. The 10 participating startup teams did their best to attract the attention of domestic and overseas business operators, scholars and experts. In the end, REMA, Fuelstation and Velodash emerged victorious; they will now represent Taiwan to travel abroad, showing the unlimited potential of Taiwan's sports innovation.

In 2018, the Sports Administration commissioned National Chiao Tung University's Center of Industry Accelerator and Patent Strategy (IAPS) and HYPE Sports Innovation (HYPE) to jointly establish SPIN Accelerator Taiwan. The aim was to utilize the technology network of IAPS and its experience of nurturing almost 100 startup teams to help the teams taking part in this project to carry out technological integration spanning technology, manufacturing and service industries and take advantage of HYPE's international sports innovation resources to quickly enter the international market and offer more possibilities to Taiwan's sports innovation.

The 1st cycle training project involved 10 outstanding Taiwan sports startup teams with potential, including Tromin and GoMore which specialize in sports data detection, Fuelstation which develops sports headphones, J-MEX which develops wearable devices, Joiup which operates a sports community APP, 17Fit which develops a sports venue management APP, Body Breakthrough which operates an online fitness course APP, REMA which develops sports functional clothing, Velodash which operates a cycling community, and WUSA which specializes in research and development of technological bicycle pedals.

The 1st cycle training project included business preparation, actual operation, markets channels and other themed workshops; the teams also received one-on-one guidance from experienced entrepreneurs and, with regard to the operating mode, online guidance from HYPE's international mentors was arranged to help them plan a strategy to attract potential investors. In addition, with respect to technology R&D and marketing, laboratory space for field verification and professional athletes as subjects was provided and arranged. Furthermore, in line with the needs of the teams, the teams were assisted to match with and link to well-known domestic and overseas enterprises and domestic sports universities, such as Google, Decathlon, Giant, National Taiwan Normal University and University of Taipei, etc.; there was also cooperation with relevant sports events to increase exposure and exchange opportunity for the teams.

At the demo day, the 10 startup teams that participated in training showed off their innovative sports products and services, and displayed the results of taking part in this project. The outstanding performance of each team made it difficult for the judging panel to decide the winners. In the end, REMA, Fuelstation and Velodash obtained the top three places. These three teams will be able to take part in the 2019 APEC Sports Policy Network (ASPN) workshop organized by the Sports Administration in June in the Philippines. Furthermore, these three teams will also be able to participate in the global sports innovation events organized by HYPE, demonstrating Taiwan's sports innovation soft power to the world.

In 2018, the Sports Administration commissioned National Chiao Tung University's Center of Industry Accelerator and Patent Strategy (IAPS) and HYPE Sports Innovation (HYPE) to jointly establish SPIN Accelerator Taiwan. The aim was to utilize the technology network of IAPS and its experience of nurturing almost 100 startup teams to help the teams taking part in this project to carry out technological integration spanning technology, manufacturing and service industries and take advantage of HYPE's international sports innovation resources to quickly enter the international market and offer more possibilities to Taiwan's sports innovation. Ten outstanding Taiwanese sports startup teams with potential participated in the first training cycle of this project and graduated on March, 2019. Two sports startups teams,

Tromin and Wusa, have been introduced in the previous issue of the Newsletter. In this issue, Velodash and 17FIT will be introduced below:

Velodash is a multi-function group riding APP that does not only record riding information, it also has a community function. Through Velodash, riders can carry out the three steps of initiating a ride, planning the route and inviting other riders. Through the APP, riders could also discuss trip itinerary, engage in social exchange and share cycling routes, making group riding easier. Velodash also provides an instant information sharing function, including teammate position, speed, distance and even has an instant ranking function, adding more fun to riding. The two founders of Velodash are both keen cyclists. During their rides, they realized that there was no APP that simultaneously provided ride recording and community interaction functions. Thus, they decided to develop Velodash to integrate all the required functions for group cycling. Velodash was chosen as the Singapore National Day cycling APP in 2018; this year, the company has two main plans: 1. to introduce an event control platform for use by cycling race organizers to allow them to keep abreast of the race situation and deploy personnel onsite through the APP and thus provide rapid first aid and other assistance to riders in need and increase work efficiency and service quality; 2. To continue to improve the experience and process of SaaS in every country and market to provide cyclists with a better riding experience.

17FIT is an online software company that focuses on serving sports and fitness, beauty salon and SPA massage businesses. It provides powerful functions to assist businesses to contact regular customers and bring in new customers. Established in 2015, 17FIT aims to help entrepreneurs, under limited resources, to tap into the power of technology to open a venue. At present, 17FIT already serves several hundred businesses around Taiwan, mostly newly-opened sports and fitness establishments and studios; operation scale as small as personal studios and as large as chain brands and civil sports centers are now using 17FIT. In future, 17FIT aims to allow more service type businesses (sport and fitness, beauty salon, spa massage, course tutoring etc.) to be able to contact customers and expand their business through its platform, even with limited resources.

Velodash 沛司科技

Velodash 是一個多功能的團騎 app，不僅能夠紀錄騎行資訊，更提供了社群功能。透過 Velodash，車友能夠一次完成發起活動、規劃路線與邀請朋友三個動作，亦能夠在社群上討論行程、相互交流、分享騎行路線，讓約騎變得更容易。Velodash 也提供分享即時資料的服務，包括隊友的定位、時速、距離，甚至有即時排名的功能，為騎行增加一分樂趣。Velodash 兩位創辦人都是車友，在多次騎行經驗中發現市場上沒有單一 App 能夠同時提供騎行紀錄與社群互動的功能，便決定開發 Velodash，將多種騎行所需功能整合在一起。Velodash 在 2018 被選為新加坡的國慶騎行 App，而今年則有兩大計畫，一是推出單車賽事主辦商專用的活動中控平台，透過 App 掌握參賽者動向、調動現場人力等，能即時為選手提供醫療等援助，並提升工作效率和服務品質。二是在各個國家和市場，持續完善 SaaS 服務的體驗和流程，為自行車友提供更好的騎行體驗。
